Pirates Programs Benefit Local Youth

Reading Pirates is a reading incentive program developed for elementary students by Coach Griff Mills. It is one of many community related outreach programs offered by Armstrong's Varsity athletic teams. The program is in its second year, and has grown from six schools and 1,000 children, to 21 schools and over 7,000 children.

Recently, Reading Pirates participants who had met their goals by reading a set number of books, were invited to attend an AASU Basketball game with their parents free of charge. After the game, they were treated to a free pizza party and awards were given for the most improved reader and the best book report.

In November, area elementary students were also treated to demonstrations by the AASU Dance team and Cheerleading squads and listened to local radio talk show host, Lynn Allen, of Mix 97.3, read an unusual version of the Three Little Pigs, in which the pigs are made out to be the bad guys.

Throughout the year, students of all ages are treated to special clinics and camps lead by AASU athletes, which help youngsters learn more about sports and athletics, or help improve their motor skills and boost their self esteem.

On Saturday, January 17,

Girl Scout Troop 90 participated in a Volleyball Clinic at the sports center. Troop leader Kathy Morgan said they learned about the clinic from flyers passed out at the Girl Scout Cookie Rally at the Georgia Guard Armory, and decided that the girls, mostly ages eight and nine, would enjoy taking part as a way to fulfill the new Girl Scout campaign: Sports Plus Girls Equals a Winning Team!

AASU Awarded Nine Grants From Board of Regents—Money Will Aid in Faculty and Course Development

In today's colleges and universities, research is almost as important as teaching. At some schools, quality instruction has taken a back seat to these other pressures in academia. The University System of Georgia, however, has designated funds to promote faculty development which will enhance teaching and learning. AASU recently received word that they will have nine of their proposals funded; the highest number of awards for any single institution in the system.

The university system awarded over $830,000 for sixty-nine Teaching and Learning Grant Awards. AASU received over $94,000 of that money to fund projects in a number of different areas. For example, Michael Toma, assistant professor of economics, received money to design a computer simulated model of the Savannah area economy. Professors and students will be able to use the information to study how to recruit industry to the area and patterns of economic development. Tom Cato, assistant professor of art, will also use his grant money to connect professors with the latest technology. Cato plans to excite both faculty and student creativity by exposing both groups to how computers can enhance creativity.

Applications for the grant money were reviewed by a committee of faculty members from the university system and by administrators from the Board of Regents Central Office. "These awards recognize the excellence of our faculty members," says Frank A. Butler, vice president of academic affairs and dean of faculty. "Funding one-third of our proposals is a vote of confidence for our professors and their development as quality teachers."

Health & Nutrition by Judith Sheldon

The outbreak of a new form of influenza in Hong Kong has alarmed health authorities around the world. This strain of virus was previously thought to infect only poultry. But it unexpectedly "jumped" to several people, some of whom died. This has led to fears that we may be seeing the start of a global outbreak of a potentially fatal form of flu, perhaps similar to the strain that caused the epidemic of 1918 in which 21 million people died.

As this is being written, scientists are working to develop an effective vaccine for this flu virus. However, since flu vaccines are grown in chicken eggs, and since this viral strain kills chicken eggs, the researchers must find another medium. This will take time, and if the virus does spread beyond Hong Kong, there's no telling how many people might be infected, and how many of them may die before a suitable medium is found.

Meanwhile, scientists are looking for viruses similar to the one killing chickens, but which do not have the same lethal effect on chicken eggs. It's possible that a vaccine made from these near relatives could protect against infection by the killer strain. Scientists are also working on a computer-created clone of the new Hong Kong virus.

Right now, the best protection we have is to maintain a healthy immune system. If you smoke, stop. Add more antioxidants (vitamins C, E, Beta-Carotene, etc.) to your diet. Establish a regular exercise routine. Avoid stress and fatigue. Stay out of crowds where you might more easily catch cold. Remember that the hands carry microorganisms. Avoid touching your face, especially around the eyes, where most cold viruses enter. If you haven't had your flu shot this past fall and early winter, there's still time to get one. It won't protect you against the new Hong Kong strain, but it could keep you from compromising your immune system by coming down with the flu for which the vaccine was developed.

Who has it easier in life, men or women? Let us know your opinion!

Question: What do you call a man who dresses like a woman?

Answer: A Transvestite

Now, what do you call a woman who dresses like a man?

Answer: A trend setter.

When a radio talk show host recently asked it's listeners who had it easier, men or women, response was mixed.

Men said that young, pretty women had it easier. Women said that they had a harder time in life because they were the ones that gave birth.

Men said women had an unfair advantage in life. They could manipulate men and get them to do whatever they wanted with the promise of sex.

Women thought all men ever thought about was sex, and felt that if women were beautiful, they actually had a worse time in life, because unattractive women would hate them for being beautiful, and men, whether attractive or not, would see them as sex objects and not as human beings, capable of being whatever they chose to be.

We want to know what our readers think. Do men have it easier than women, or do women have it easier than men. Do attractive men have the same problems or advantages as attractive women, and which would you rather be?

Good Behavior vs. Bad Behavior: Are Relaxed Rules at Home Leading to Rude Behavior in School?

Recently, the Inkwell received a number of inquiries from professors asking us to investigate possible reasons for the growing number of poorly behaved students they see in their classrooms. Professors cited incidents in which students arrive late to class on a regular basis, talk when the lecture is going on, read outside material or do homework for other classes, and then get angry when the professor will not repeat something they did not hear, because they were not listening.

The greatest change they have noted from students of today verses students of 10 years ago is a lack of respect for authority figures. Inkwell reporter Radha Narayanan suggests that students who exhibit "bad" behavior may simply be more relaxed and at ease around authority figures than were students of ages past. She also questions whether being brought up properly at home (to respect others and follow rules of courteous behavior in varying situations), makes a difference in one's public behavior. What do you think? Take our behavior quiz on page 15 and return it by February 6th, and we'll enter your name in a drawing for 2 free movie tickets!

By Radha Narayanan

You probably have seen someone with a pager that beeps during class, or have seen people constantly talking to their friends during class time. Most people will agree that these type behaviors are for the most part, rude and inconsiderate. However, it is not always so clear-cut to define good behavior and bad behavior. A certain behavior may be considered rude by one person and perfectly acceptable by another. For example, the student who props his or her feet up on the empty desk in front of them may think they are doing no harm. They may be under the belief that they are taking a relaxed attitude and are not concerned that their feet may be covered in mud (or worse), and that no one wants to look at their feet or brush the dirt off the seat if they come into class late and have no place else to sit.

What about people listening to music on headphones while they are taking notes in class, or blowing big bubbles while chewing gum and making loud popping noises? At what point does an everyday behavior become rude and inappropriate? Are some behaviors appropriate in some settings and not in others?

How can one tell whether the behavior is really inappropriate, or whether the person complaining about the behavior is being unjustly intolerant? Have you ever had a professor that locks the door five seconds after class has begun and refuses to let anyone in? Is bad behavior growing to be more prevalent, or are we becoming less tolerant of different behaviors?

The tolerance point for "bad" behavior is different for everyone. There are various factors that influence how well a person is able to tolerate different behaviors. How a person is brought up is a big influence on how he or she will behave towards others, and how that person will act in different situations. For example, a person who is taught to act properly will act that way, while a person raised in an environment with relaxed rules will display themselves in a relaxed manner which may often be interpreted by others as being rude.

Of course, society plays a major impact on what is considered to be acceptable behavior and what is not. Today's society has become more tolerant of actions that would have been unthinkable in the past. The question then becomes: is this relaxed attitude towards behavior good or bad? Everyone will have a different answer to that question. What is your opinion?

Take the behavior quiz on page 15 and let us know how you feel?

Problems in Paradise

Slip Sliding Away

Students using the Aquatics and Recreation Center have informed Inkwell staff members that a potentially dangerous situation exists involving wet slippery floors.

It seems that the hallways to the pool are covered in water and are slippery and dangerous. One woman had begun wearing rubber soled shoes to the pool, but found that this caused her to slip worse than her bare feet.

It has been suggested that outdoor carpeting, or nonslip strips be installed from the bathrooms to the pool entrance to prevent slipping.

Vanity, they name is....

So all right, maybe it isn't a problem to some people, but the women at AASU would like to see their old mirror in the ARC locker room restored between the multiple electric outlets they use to plug in their blow dryers to prevent going to class with wet hair after swim class.

Have you ever tried to blow dry long or unruly hair without the assistance of a mirror to make sure you aren't coming out of there looking like a punk rocker with a dying doo?

While you are at it, a little ventilation in the old gym wouldn't be such a bad thing either. Phew, it's hot in there!

AASU Police refuse to ticket Faculty Members who park in Student Leader's reserved spaces

So who's a student leader, and why should I care if they have to park in the overcrowded parking lot like everyone else?

Well, student leaders represent all of us students at a rate of pay that often amounts to about $2 an hour. One of the perks they receive is a free parking space with their title on it.

Reserved student leader spaces take up about 9 parking spots along Arts Drive at the MCC building, and include spaces for SGA officers, SPS workers, the Inkwell editor and the President of Student Court (who isn't on the payroll at all).

These students must frequently run errands, deliver supplies, carry heavy equipment and go to and from campus several times during the day. When other people park in their spots, it is more than an inconvenience, it is a real hassle, especially if it is raining and they have to deliver artwork or heavy electronic equipment across town, or pick up an important performing artist from the airport for a show in the MCC.

It's bad enough when other students park in these blue labeled reserved spaces, but at least they can be given warnings or issued tickets to discourage them from parking there again. Unfortunately, when a Health Professions worker began parking on a regular basis in one of the reserved spaces of an SGA officer, police refused to ticket her car, despite the fact that many staff parking spots were open barely 20 feet down from the student's space.

While it might be understandable to park there just once if no other spaces were available, that kind of behavior is rude and uncalled for and shows a lack of respect for the difficult job these student leaders perform.

At least, the AASU police should issue warning tickets requesting that faculty only park in spaces reserved for faculty or staff. We wonder whether this individual would have been issued a ticket if she had decided to park in an administrator's reserved space or a handicap zone?

Please, show respect for our student workers by not taking advantage of their parking spaces. Having a reserved space is a prestigious thing that means a lot to them. They EARNED those spaces; please don't belittle their positions by assuming you are more important than they are. We learned how to share in kindergarten, but we also learned it wasn't polite to steal things that don't belong to us. Maybe that's a lesson some of us need to remember before we take advantage of someone who doesn't deserve that kind of treatment. Then again, if you would like to be Student Government President, Inkwell Editor or Student Photographer for a day and deal with all the crap they have to take; they'll gladly let you park in their spaces any time! Roll in at 5:00 punch out at 9:00, - hey, who's idea was that..... D'oh!!

University Hall at Odds with Mother Nature

Some students attending class at the newly opened University Hall thought they were under attack when three loud cracks rang out scaring them half to death. As it turned out; the noise they heard was not gun fire, but birds whacking into the shining glass exterior facing the woods.

If you've never tried to walk through a closed sliding glass door and made a fool of yourself, or ended up in the hospital waiting to have your face stitched up; don't laugh.

Many birds break their necks and beaks flying into reflective glass and mirrors. They see the reflection of the woods and assume it is a continuation of their own forested world.

Some people paste silhouettes of birds on the windows as a warning. Others have tried stained glass decorations. Maybe our art department could turn this into a project to liven up those mall like walls. If all else fails, at least the stray cats will be well fed this year! Oooo... sorry that was in poor taste.

Seafood Is Brain Food

(NAPS)—It's well known that full-flavored fish, such as wild Alaska salmon, contains high levels of omega-3 fatty acids, that may reduce the risk of heart disease and cancer. Recent studies show that one of these omega-3s, linolenic acid, can also work wonders on our gray matter by helping our bodies to make docosahexaenoic acid (DHA)—the brain's primary structural fatty acid.

Scientists once thought that DHA was only crucial to brain development before birth and during infancy, but new reports have linked a deficiency of DHA to depression, dyslexia, and attention-deficit disorder in children and adults. Of course, DHA is just one nutritional bonus that comes from eating fish, which is also rich in high quality protein, calcium, zinc, and vitamins B and D.

Need more reasons to put some fish on your plate? Consider this: Even the richest fish contains only 15 percent fat. You can lower total fat and saturated fat in your diet significantly with a weekly serving of salmon, halibut, or cod.

FETTUCCINE WITH SALMON, FENNEL AND RED PEPPER

The tiny, soft bones found in canned salmon are completely edible and also a great source of calcium.

Makes 4 servings

- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 2 cups sliced fennel
- 3 cloves garlic, chopped
- ½ teaspoon dried thyme
- ¼ cup water
- 1 can (14.75-ounce) Alaskan red sockeye salmon
- 1 jar (12-ounce) roasted red pepper, drained and chopped
- 1 can (15-ounce) small white beans, rinsed and drained

- 2 cubes chicken or vegetable bouillon
- 12 ounces fettuccine
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch dissolved in 1 tablespoon cold water
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley

1. In large skillet, heat oil. Add fennel and saute 5 minutes. Add garlic and thyme; saute 3 minutes. Stir in water and cook until most of the water evaporates.

2. Drain salmon; discard skin. Flake salmon into large chunks. Stir salmon, roasted red pepper, and beans into fennel mixture; set aside.

3. Heat 8 cups water to boiling; add bouillon and stir to dissolve. Add fettuccine and cook until tender. Drain pasta, reserving 1 cup hot cooking water. Stir cornstarch mixture into hot water; stir hot water into salmon mixture. Cook salmon mixture, stirring, until liquid thickens. Stir in parsley.

4. To serve, top pasta with salmon mixture. Garnish, if desired, with fennel fronds.

Donating blood is simple and safe. The prospective donor must be at least 17 years old in most states, be in good health and weigh at least 110 pounds. A person can donate blood every eight weeks.

Each unit of blood is separated into many components, which may be transfused to a number of different individuals.

The American Association of Blood Banks, America's Blood Centers and the American Red Cross salute past and present blood donors, and encourage regular blood donations from healthy first-time and repeat donors. Call your local blood bank to make an appointment to donate.

Giving blood helps save lives, and many more donors are needed.

More than 23 million units of blood and blood components are transfused each year. More is needed to help with accident victims, people undergoing surgery and patients receiving treatment for leukemia, cancer, sickle cell anemia or other diseases.

When traveling on extended stay business, one-third of respondents told a survey they bring a photo of family or friends with them. Six percent bring a picture of their pets.

American colonists found many oil wells while looking for salt. Salt makers regarded petroleum oil as a nuisance, but other people sold it as a cure for physical ailments.

QUICK QUIZ

Test Your Tax I.Q.

(NAPS)—How much do you know about the law that says how much you owe? The Internal Revenue Code (IRC) spells out how much you must pay Uncle Sam each year. Here's a short quiz to test your IRC I.Q. (Answers at bottom.)

1. The national income tax was first levied: a. shortly after the Revolutionary War b. to pay down debt incurred by the War of 1812 c. during the Civil War d. shortly before the First World War?

2. Compared to the original IRC, today's tax code is: a. 10 times longer b. 25 times longer c. 75 times longer d. 150 times longer?

3. The original IRC required only one form to collect taxes. Today, the complexity of the code has caused the IRS to develop a. nearly 100 different forms b. nearly 225 different forms c. more than 375 different forms d. more than 550 different forms.

4. Americans spend 1.7 billion hours each year completing their individual income tax forms. How many hours do business owners spend trying to comply with the tax code? a. about the same amount of time b. about twice as many hours c. about five times as many hours d. about 10 times as many hours.

5. What is the ratio of compliance costs (record-keeping and other paperwork requirements) to income tax paid for small-business owners? a. $1.50:$1 ($1.50 in compliance costs for every $1 in taxes paid) b. $3.45:$1 c. $5.75:$1 d. $7.25:$1.

The nation's leading small-business advocacy group, the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB), has launched a national "Campaign to Abolish the IRS Code."

NFIB is collecting a million signatures on a petition that calls on Congress to kill the current tax code by December 31, 2000, replacing it with a fairer—and far simpler—tax system. More than 100 members of Congress already have signed a pledge to sunset the code. To add your name to the Campaign to Abolish the IRS Code, call 1-888-NOT4IRS or check out the campaign's website: www.not4irs.org.

Answers: 1.c—Enacted in 1861 as a temporary revenue measure, the first income tax was repealed in 1872. An effort to revive the tax in 1894 was ruled unconstitutional. The modern income tax began in 1913, with ratification of the 16th amendment. 2.d—The original (1913) IRC was 14 pages long; today it runs to 2,200 pages. (The annotated code, containing court rulings to clarify what the code means, fills 14 volumes—one for each page of the original code.) 3.c—The IRS publishes more than 400 separate forms (and more than 100 different instruction books to help people figure out how to use them.) 4.b—Business owners spend 3.4 billion hours annually on tax compliance (the equivalent of 3 million full-time employees working on nothing but taxes year round.) 5.d—Small corporations pay a minimum of $724 in compliance costs for every $100 paid in taxes. (The compliance burden is at least 24 times greater for small firms than for big business.)

Hangover Hints

(NAPS)—What causes hangovers? You may be surprised to find out it's not alcohol.

The substances that cause hangovers are impurities, called congeners, found in some alcoholic drinks—not the alcohol itself.

Activated carbon pills can diminish alcohol's hangover effects.

Typical hangover symptoms include headache, halitosis, thirst, gastric irritation, fatigue and dizziness.

The best method to ward off a hangover involves activated charcoal. That substance is often used to "filter" whiskeys and produce less of a hangover by removing many of the congeners before they are absorbed into the body.

If you know you'll be in an environment where you may overindulge in alcohol, consider using activated carbon pills prior to, during or after drinking, as they line the stomach and intestines.

One brand, Sob'r-K, is made from a patented, all-natural type of activated carbon that has been proven to be the most effective for the adverse effects of alcohol. The pills have no side effects.

To learn more, call toll-free 1-888-774-2760 or visit its Web site at <http://www.hangovercure.com>.

For most people, scientists say, from three to five dreams, each lasting from 10 to 30 minutes, occur during eight hours of sleep.

Pirates Take Two Games From Lander

By David Bowman

In a recent home match against Lander University, Armstrong won both the Men's and the Women's games. The women won their game convincingly with a 72-55 victory. The Lady Pirates had 13 steals and a blocked shot while playing solid defense and their offense was dominating. The Lady Pirates shot 100% from behind the three point arc while shooting 43% for the total field goals. Sonia Oliver led the scoring for both teams with 15 points and Demetria McClouden continued to contribute with 12 points. Sonia Oliver also led the Pirates in rebounding with 11 boards. The men had a slightly closer game, winning 59-53 after leading by seven points at half-time. Mario Anderson led the Pirates in scoring with 13 and close behind him was P. Samuel with 12 points. The Pirates held the rebound advantage, largely due to Samuel, who had 11 rebounds, and Anderson who added 9. The Pirates played strong defense, with 13 steals and 7 blocked shots.

The Boy's of Summer start the Winter Season in one week!

By BJ English

With all the hoopla over homecoming and the Peachbelt basketball tournament coming to AASU, a lot of folks are unaware that Baseball and Tennis are starting soon.

The first ball game of the season will be held at AASU this January 31st, as the Pirates take on St. Andrews in a doubleheader starting 11:00 A.M. Saturday and again on Sunday the 31st at 1:00 P.M.

On February 5th, the Pirates take on Albany State at 2:00 P.M. in the AASU field behind the tennis courts.

The Pirates have significantly improved their pitching rotation and depth this year, and it has been reported that 5 of AASU's pitchers have been clocked throwing in the 90 m.p.h. zone! Which is a good reason to remember not to park your car behind the baseball diamond fence!!!

If you or anyone you know, wishes to cover baseball action for the Inkwell, we are willing to pay for photos and text. Come by and see us in room 202 above the cafeteria, and go out and support your home team!

Aerobics Classes Return to Sports Center

By Lynn Roberts

The aerobic classes sponsored by Intramurals and Recreation are being offered at 12:10 Monday - Friday and 5:30 Monday - Thursday. Beginning on Tuesday, January 20 the classes will resume on the North Balcony of the Sports Center.

The arena floor was being resurfaced at the beginning of school, and the strong fumes caused us to cancel the 5:30 classes for that week, and move the 12:10 classes to the Aquatics and Recreation Center.

If you have any questions regarding these classes, contact Lynn Roberts at 921-2080.

Men's Basketball Update from Pirates Report

The AASU men's basketball opened their season with a trip north to Indiana. The University of Indianapolis was holding the Coca-Cola Classic, a four team tournament. The Pirates fell to the host school 67-59 the first night. The Pirates started slowly in the opening game against Indianapolis, but behind Kuzian and Guard Steve Ray the Pirates came storming back. Ray's five three pointers helped Armstrong cut the margin down to three, but could not get any closer. However, they bounced back the next night to defeat the Mighty Oaks of Oakland City University 66-63. Kuzian and fellow big man Warren McClendon led a strong inside game. Kuzian had 21 points and 9 rebounds, while newcomer McClendon dominated the game with 14 points and 18 rebounds. Senior Marcin Kuzian was named to the All-Tournament team.

The trip was about more than basketball. It was a chance for the team to see some of the tradition in the crazed Basketball State. The Pirates arrived on Thursday, November 13th, with their traveling party, which included members of the administration and faculty. President Burnett, his wife, Mary, Vice-President Stegall, and Dr. Will Lynch were included in the travel plans as well as other avid Pirate supporters. Once they checked into the hotel they proceeded to Terre Haute, Indiana, Coach Mills' hometown. They visited the Boys Club where Coach Mills shared his learning experience of basketball from his father. The team then went to Larry Bird's Boston Connection, a restaurant and hotel that displays Larry Bird's basketball memorabilia. Before enjoying a wonderful dinner at Coach Mill's home, the team had their favorite activity, a snowball fight. The team is currently 7-8 (2-3 in their division).

Women's Basketball Update from Pirates Report

The Lady Pirate basketball season is under way. The season started on the road at an always tough Presbyterian College. After a hard fought contest the Lady Pirates were defeated 69-55. Sonia Oliver led AASU with 12 points and 9 rebounds. The next test for the Lady Pirates was crosstown rival Savannah State. The Lady Pirates handled the pressure of the opposing team and came away victorious, winning 66-61 in front of a large crowd. Sonia Oliver and Christa Vaughan led the way with inside scoring and rebounding combining for 26 points and 23 rebounds. The home opener versus Barton College, who is picked to win the Carolinas-Virginia conference, was another challenging opponent for the Lady Pirates. AASU rallied to tie the score with 2:10 remaining, but lost 65-60. They then traveled to Lynn University, where the Pirates showed poise against pressure and played solid defense as they defeated the Knights, 74-56. Junior transfer Demetria McClouden getting her first start of the year responded well scoring 21 points and grabbing 6 rebounds. The next game was again a tough test for the Lady Pirates, as they had to play Barry University, picked to win the Sunshine State Conference. After a slow start, getting out-scored 23-0 the Lady Pirates couldn't rebound and lost 82-40. The Lady Pirates hope the tough schedule will prepare them for the challenging Peach Belt conference, when play opens up against the defending champs, Kennesaw State University.

We're looking for a few good players!

Why Do I Need Those Shots??!

As part of the admission requirements for AASU, you were asked to update your immunizations for Measles, Mumps, and Rubella (German measles) and tetanus. And in some cases you needed a TB test and hepatitis B vaccine. Your question may have been "Why do I need those shots?" The purpose of this column is to answer questions about these immunizations.

You may also be saying, "No one gets measles or mumps anymore." The reason you do not hear of these illnesses too often is that in the United States we have mandatory immunization laws. However, according to the Healthy People 2000, the immunization rate in the United States for children less than two years of age is only 71%; only 60% who needed it received the flu vaccine; while approximately 16% received the Hepatitis B vaccine. The US should have a 100% rate. The state of Georgia is doing well in this area of public health. In 1995 two thirds of Georgia's counties met or exceeded a 90% rate.

Because there still are children and adults who are not adequately immunized, the goal is to "catch you when we can," and get you immunized. The other reason is that measles, mumps, and rubella, when they occur in adults, usually result in more severe symptoms and complications. With measles, mumps, and tetanus, an adult infection can lead to death from such illnesses as pneumonia, encephalitis, or respiratory distress.

For individuals of childbearing age, these illnesses have even greater implications. If a pregnant woman is infected with measles, there is the possibility of preterm birth. A pregnant woman infected with mumps may have a spontaneous abortion. Infection with rubella places the mother at risk for delivering a baby with birth defects and hearing loss. In addition, a mumps infection in men can lead to Orchitis (swelling to the Testicles.).

Tetanus is an illness that occurs from contaminated wounds. In the person who is not immunized, the illness results in muscle spasms, breathing difficulties, and heart disturbances. Individuals need tetanus shots every 10 years.

The incidence of Tuberculosis was in decline in the 1970's and 1980's but is on the increase today. This is a very contagious disease that results in cough, fever, severe fatigue, chest pain, and weight loss. In the elderly, homeless, and other lower socioeconomic populations the result can be death. However, this illness is easily diagnosed with the tuberculin skin test and treated with medications.

Hepatitis B virus (HBV) is an infection primarily of young adults. Three hundred thousand new cases occur annually in the US, and approximately one million individuals are HBV carriers. The illness starts with flu-like symptoms that may turn into liver problems in 25% of cases; the course of this illness can last for three to six months. Again this illness poses increased risks for women of childbearing age. An infected newborn has an increased likelihood for chronic hepatitis (liver infection).

Unlike immunizations for childhood diseases, the adult population is encouraged to obtain flu shot particularly those over 65 years of age. You know the symptoms of the flu. The flu vaccine may not prevent the disease, but obtaining a flu shot can result in milder symptoms.

In 1900 communicable diseases were the leading cause of death in the US. Today other illnesses have replaced infectious diseases as the leading killers. However, communicable diseases have not vanished from our lives. They continue to pose a challenge to health care providers and in certain populations can cause severe problems. See your doctor or call the Chatham County Health Department (356-2441) for more information about the current immunization schedule and how, when, and where you can get your immunizations. Keep your immunizations up to date for your own protection and the protection of others.

To Your Health!! will feature information about your health. Suggestions and comments should be sent to Dr. Camille Stern, Graduate Program in Nursing (921-5721). E-mail: camille\_stern@mailgate.armstrong.edu

Soybeans: Products for Health, Environment

(NAPS)—First grown for food and animal feed in Asia more than 2,000 years ago, soybeans are approaching their third millennium as a source of products for better health and a cleaner environment.

Some 381,000 farmers in 31 states produce about 2 billion bushels of soybeans annually, with each bushel yielding 11 pounds of soy oil and 48 pounds of high-protein meal.

Nearly cholesterol-free soybean oil contains eight amino acids essential to good nutrition. Eighty-five percent of all margarine is derived from soybean oil. Protein-rich soy oil is in foods such as salad dressing, mayonnaise, and vegetable oil.

In addition, soybean oil is contributing to a cleaner environment. Biodiesel fuel made with soybean oil can be blended with regular diesel fuel to power buses, trucks, and farm vehicles. This renewable fuel cuts exhaust emissions from diesel engines. Soybean oil also is being used to make hydraulic fluid, industrial solvents, paint, crayons, and hand cleaner.

The miracle bean also plays a key role in meeting the needs of the Information Age. More than one-third of all newspaper publishers and 25 percent of all commercial printers in the United States use ink that contains soybean oil for color printing. Newspaper readers have found that soy ink doesn't rub off the page as does petroleum-based ink. Soy ink can be removed from paper more effectively than petroleum-based ink, which facilitates paper recycling.

Whether it's processed into healthy food, fuel, or ink, the soybean is proving to be one of the most versatile crops around.

Tar can be removed from skin by squeezing on toothpaste and rubbing.

Ink spots on cloth can be removed with toothpaste. Scrub and rinse thoroughly.

The first around-the-world flight was made in 1924.

NEWS

Beware Of Sjögren's Syndrome

(NAPS)—An otherwise healthy, active mother of six, had the flu in 1986 and never felt well afterwards. She began developing a variety of symptoms—a mouth so dry it was difficult to speak and eat; unusually frequent dental problems; dry, gritty eyes and blurry vision; swollen salivary glands; fatigue and paralyzing joint inflammation. Her doctor thought the stress of a family crisis and a demanding job as a nurse were to blame.

When her complications became more severe, her doctor sent her to a specialist. Finally, after nearly six years of painful, debilitating symptoms, she was diagnosed with Sjögren's (SHOW-grens) syndrome. Eventually, she developed related difficulties with balance and concentration. In 1993, memory problems forced her to leave her job.

Her story is typical of Sjögren's syndrome patients. Because many doctors are unfamiliar with the disease, most sufferers remain undiagnosed and untreated for an average of six years. Sjögren's affects more than one million people in the United States, and women account for more than 90 percent of diagnosed cases.

"Sjögren's syndrome is a debilitating disease that is poorly diagnosed and undertreated," said Ann L. Parke, M.D., professor of medicine in the Division of Rheumatology at the University of Connecticut Health Center.

Sjögren's syndrome is a chronic, inflammatory disease that damages the moisture-producing glands, particularly the salivary glands, causing patients to suffer from dry eyes and mouth. Sjögren's syndrome patients also have a greater risk for developing other autoimmune diseases, such as lupus and rheumatoid arthritis. There is no known cure, but symptoms can be managed.

The U.S. Public Health Services Office on Women's Health lists Sjögren's syndrome, along with other autoimmune diseases, as an important and neglected health issue affecting American women. As a class of illnesses, autoimmune diseases are the fourth leading cause of disability in women, with an annual cost to the nation of an estimated $86 billion.

The Arthritis Foundation has a free brochure on Sjögren's syndrome available from 1-800-283-7800 or www.arthritis.org. There are two national patient support organizations for Sjögren's syndrome: The Sjögren's Syndrome Foundation, Inc. (1-800-4-SJO-GREN or www.sjogren.org) and the National Sjögren's Syndrome Association (1-800-395-6772; www.sjogrens.org).

campus crime

Campus Crime Report

By Michelle Cobb

While most students and faculty of Armstrong Atlantic State University were home for the holidays, the campus police stayed quite busy. The following criminal activities are from the months of December and January.

December 1, 1997

- At 12:12 p.m. the victim had a seizure and passed out in Hawes 207. Upon arrival of campus police, the victim was conscious but too disoriented to give any information. EMS transported the victim to St. Joseph's Hospital. A witness stated that the victim hit her back against the classroom wall then fell to the floor.

- Complainant left his Medical Surgery textbook, with a value of $80.00, on a desk at the second floor of Lane Library. He stepped out for an hour. When he returned, his book was missing. He stated that his initials were on the side binder and that the binder was loose. He notified Southeastern, the book buy back company on Tuesday, December 2. The textbook was recovered by the AASU Bookstore.

December 3, 1997

- A white female, age 39, stated that at 9:10 p.m. she left her Statistics 7th Edition book with approximate value of $80.00 in the second floor of Lane Library. Complainant stated that when she returned, unknown person(s) had taken her book. She also stated that she had marked on the front inside page of the book her name.

- A white female, age 51, forgot the key to her locker that was located in room 211 of the Fine Arts building. At 2:30 p.m. she requested AASU Police to remove the lock with bolt cutters.

December 5, 1997

- A black male, age 22, in the Sports Center at 6:05 p.m. was trying to recruit followers of, or some sort of support in reference to Haile Selassie*. He was advised to leave AASU property and not to return or he would be arrested for criminal trespassing.

- The complainant left her purse on the front table of the Writing Center at 1:45 p.m. and walked out for a few minutes. When she returned, it was not there. It is described as a brown, leather, Liz Claiborne purse. The contents of the purse included a day planner, address book, keys to house and car, checkbook, and wallet. The complainant believes checks #498-500 were inside her checkbook. Her driver's license was in the wallet.

- White female, age 66, slipped and fell while walking up the bleachers in the Sports Center at 4:50 p.m. She skinned her right shin and banged her left knee. Complainant refused medical treatment. During my investigation I found that the hand rail which she was holding at the time of the fall was loose and unstable.

December 11, 1997

- While on patrol, an AASU police officer noticed pink streamers hanging off the ROTC tower in City Park. Unknown person(s) entered the tower by pulling up the chain link fence from the bottom and crawling inside. They left a basketball inside along with pink survey ribbon. There was damage to the base of the tower and to the fence. Capt. Jones was notified.

- At 8:27 a.m. an AASU police officer noticed the window was broken to dorm 504-C. Upon his arrival, the outside pane to the left bedroom was broken. There was glass below but no object in the area that could have broken the window. The front door was unlocked and cracked open. There was no one inside and there were no pry marks on the door.

December 12, 1997

- White female, age 19, was looking up recipes on America On-line at her residence. She received a message via on-line from Robert Thorton. He gave her his phone number asking her to call. She called him and no one answered. He then called her back. She stated that she did not give him her phone number, that he may have *69 or Caller I.D. Service.

December 21, 1997

- At 4 p.m. an AASU police officer responded to a neighborhood complainant about an open window behind Ashmore Hall. Caller also stated that the screen from the window was taken off. Upon arrival to the back of Ashmore Hall, the screen from the window of room 138 and the wood stick used to keep the window from opening was on the ground.

- At 10:41 p.m. an AASU police officer on foot patrol in the quad area noticed that the Video Jukebox back access door was open. The access door had a piece of hanger hanging out of the door. The cashbox from the machine was missing. The computer inside the machine was left intact.

December 27, 1997

- A black male, age 28, was acting unruly during a basketball game in the old Gym. The person was asked to leave the campus. No further actions was taken at that time.

December 29, 1997

- An AASU police officer noticed the door of the ROTC tower in City Park was pried. The tower door was off the hinges and the grass was spray painted orange. Sgt. Havens of Army ROTC came with the key. Once inside there were spray cans lying around and a rake and stick handle were by the door.

December 30, 1997

- Black male, age 37, who works for Evergreen Tree Service was cutting tree limbs off in front of University Hall at 10:30 a.m. Due to high winds, a limb that was in control of Evergreen employee smashed through a window. The owner of Evergreen Tree Service was notified to the scene. The damage was approximately $200.

January 2, 1998

- Black female, age 29, states that she was walking in the Fine Arts Auditorium between rows E and F and about to enter the main aisle. She tripped on what appeared to be some type of electrical outlet sticking up out of the floor, causing her to fall head first across the aisle, hitting the left side of her neck. She refused medical treatment.

January 7, 1998

- White male, age 24, left his bicycle on the bike rack on his vehicle at 4:30 p.m. while he went inside the Baptist Student Union. When he returned at 5:30 p.m. the bike was gone from the bike rack. It was a 15/18 gear mountain bike light blue in color with blue and yellow stripes on the frame and on the spokes.

- White female, age 27, stated that at 9 a.m. someone took her book bag while she was in her aerobics class. The bag contained two books, one is Nursing in the Community with a value of $65, the other is Nursing Research with a value of $35. The bag also contained a tape recorder at $55, a day organizer at $25 and a green change bag with $6 in it.

January 8, 1998

- A white male, age 21, was pulled over on Gym Drive. His GA. Drivers License number came back suspended from 3-26-97 due to a second D.U.I. charge. The offender was placed under arrest and transported to Chatham County Jail for processing. His vehicle was released to his friend.

- An AASU police officer walked up to the Administration Building at 7:40 p.m. and observed a black male, age 21, sitting on the steps. The officer said hello to the subject and then asked him if he was a student here, at which time he replied "Yeah, why you want to know?" The officer asked him for his student I.D. He took his student I.D. out and held it in front of the officers face but refused to let him hold it. At this time the subject became extremely loud and abusive toward the officer. He screamed that the officer was harassing him. Back up was called at this time and the officer tried to calm the subject, but the subject became loud and threatening. The officer thought there was a possibility of bodily harm. The subject was placed under arrest and transported to the Chatham County Jail for processing.

January 9, 1998

- Complainant states that a black male, age 23, came to the cashier window of the Administration Building at 2:45 p.m. and asked if his check was in. The complainant then asked the subject for proper I.D. at which time he informed her he had lost it. The complainant then explained that without proper I.D. she could not release any information to him. The subject then left the area only to return a short time with some type of bank I.D. with a name but no photo. Again the complainant tried to explain the policy and procedure to the subject. The subject became irate, threw a book at the window and stormed out of the building. When the officer encountered the subject, he had a very curt attitude toward the officer. The officer explained the complaint and the subject stated that he didn't like the demeanor. When asked for his I.D. (student or drivers license), the subject said he had lost both but never filed any type of report. Upon GCIC / NCIC check, it was revealed that the subject had prior offenses, one of which being, giving false information to a police officer. The subject had two friends with him that were politely asked to step away while the officer completed the investigation. They looked at the officer and stated "are you asking us, or telling us?" Once again the officer asked them to step away. They did with a very belligerent attitude. The subject was advised that a report would be filed, and sent him on his way. Upon reading the NCIC / GCIC print out of the subject, the officer found that he was given a false spelling of the subject's first name by the subject himself.

January 10, 1998

- Complainant stated that at 4:20 p.m. an unknown person was loading top soil from the canal parking lot into a blue pickup. Investigation revealed that top soil had indeed been taken from this location. There is nothing further at this time.

January 12, 1998

An employee of Southeast Services was cleaning the Dental Lab in the Health Professions building at 9:45 p.m. He found one large orange bag with a shoulder strap containing nine Radio Shack audionic voice activated five channel transceiver with approximate value of $375.00, and four Procell nine volt batteries with approximate value of $10.00. Each radio box has some type of Armstrong ID on them. Also in the bag were miscellaneous ear pieces that were placed in the evidence room.

*Rastafarians are members of a Jamaican messianic movement dating back to the 1930s. In 1974 they were estimated to number 20,000 in Jamaica. According to Rastafarian belief, the only true God is the late Ethiopian emperor HAILE SELASSIE (originally known as Ras Tafari), and Ethiopia is the true Zion. Rastafarians claim that white Christian preachers and missionaries have perverted the Scriptures to conceal the fact that Adam and Jesus were black. Their rituals include the use of marijuana and the chanting of revivalist hymns. REGGAE music is the popular music of the movement. The Rastafarians, who stress black separatism, have exercised some political influence in Jamaica.

Ask Dr. Whitney

Ask Dr. Whitney is a new addition to the Inkwell. If you would like to ask advice on a subject, you may address your letters to:

Dear Dr. Whitney

Dear Dr. Whitney

I'm having communication problems with my girlfriend. We've been going together for three months and I feel we're as close as perfect strangers. Lately, she hasn't been talking to me and I don't know why. She sometimes ignores me all together. She's been having a lot of personal problems lately and all I try to do is be there for her. She pushes me to the side like I'm the problem. That frustrates me a lot. I try to have a conversation with her, but she either answers my questions with questions or she talks circles around me. I can't win for losing! I've even gotten my friends to talk to her for me, but that gets me nowhere because she now talks to them more than she does me. I'd break up with her, but I think I love her. I'm frustrated, confused, and clueless as on what to do. Can you help?

Helplessly Devoted

Dear Helplessly Devoted,

First of all do not, I mean DO NOT, get your friends involved. Having a middle man is not a good idea. It turns into a he-said/she-said situation and that's more trouble than its worth. Plus, you'll have all of those unnecessary people in your business. What's the point of that?

It's obvious that you've been trying hard to re-open the lines of communication between yourself and your girlfriend. It looks like all of your efforts are in vain. She obviously has serious problems if she'll talk to her boyfriend's friends, but not her boyfriend. What I think you should do is stand back and take a look at your relationship, and ask yourself if it's all worth it. If you really do love this girl, keep trying. If you're having doubts(which is understandable), break it off with her until she gets her act together. Sweetheart, you are too young and there are too many women in the world to be stressing over one silly little girl. Take some initiative and stop letting her step all over your emotions. Remember, be assertive and be mature about it.

Dear Dr. Whitney,

I'm in a little situation. My roommate recently told me that my boyfriend has been flirting with her and asked her out. She says he even tried to kiss her! Naturally, when I asked him, he denied everything. He tried so hard to convince me that she was lying, but eventually he broke down and told me that she was telling the truth. Here's the problem, I love him so much. We've been together for so long that I can't picture being without him. On the other hand, I feel betrayed every time I look at him. He's apologized over and over again and told me he loved me, which makes it harder for me to break up with him. What should I do?

Blinded By Love

Dear Blinded,

One thing is for sure--your boyfriend is definitely a first-class JERK. You can't honestly believe that his apologies are sincere and that he really loves you. He asked your roommate out! He tried to kiss her! Newsflash----THAT'S NOT LOVE!! He didn't love you when he was flirting with your roommate and Lord knows who else behind your back. He didn't love you when he lied by denying anything ever happened. He's a chump and he's trying to make a chump out of you. I do believe that he's sorry, though. He's sorry that he got trapped in his own lie. It's guys like him that give the few good guys left in the world a bad name. Here's my suggestion: I think you should make him apologize to your roommate for calling her a liar, then I say you give him the boot. There's no ring on your finger and there are no children involved, so there should be no guilt in letting him go. If he really did love you, he would've proved it. First, by not doing what he did in the first place. But since he did do it, he should have been straight-up with you. You deserve someone who can respect you enough to be honest and love you enough to be faithful. Not only will you be happier (I guarantee that), but he has a chance to figure out what love really is. Like I said before, this is only a suggestion. Do what you feel is best.

Dear Dr. Whitney,

Tiffany and I have been best friends since High School. When we started college, I got an apartment and Tiffany moved into the dorms. After a few weeks, Tiffany decided that dorm life wasn't for her and she asked me if she could move into my apartment. Of course, I thought it was a great idea. We could be together all of the time. I said yes without hesitation.

Everything was going great, but like all good things it came to an end. After a while, our apartment turned into the House Of Horrors. I saw a side of Tiffany that I never knew existed, and I definitely didn't like it. We started fighting so much that we began arguing over little stupid things. I can't take it anymore. I think it's best that we not live together, but I don't know what to say to her. I'm not moving out because I lived in the apartment first, but I don't want to just kick her out on the street, either. After all, she is my best friend. Please tell me what to do.

Mary

Dear Mary,

I'm sorry things didn't turn out the way you planned, but that usually happens. Best friends are best friends because of their similarities and their differences. When you two moved in together, your personalities began to clash and it started blowing up in your face. Everyone has a dark side, and you just happened to see Tiffany's while she was living with you.

Have you tried talking to Tiffany yet? I know its hard to tell your best friend things that may hurt her feelings, but sometimes it has to be done. When you talk to her, be honest about your feelings, but be tactful. For example, maybe you should tell her that because of all of the arguing and fighting, your friendship is being jeopardized. Maybe it would be best for the both of you if she would arrange for someplace else to live. After that, you two can sit down and discuss it like two mature adults without bickering and fighting. Trust me, communication is the key. You'll figure everything out.

Dear Dr. Whitney,

I have been logging on to the Internet a lot lately. A couple of weeks ago, I met a guy in one of the chat rooms and we really hit it off. We send each other e-mail everyday and we occasionally talk on the phone. He just recently asked if he could come here so we can meet face-to-face. I really like this guy, but I'm a little nervous about meeting him. What if he doesn't like me? What if I don't like him? I'm just afraid everything won't come out the way I expect. What should I do?

Cyber Babe

Dear Cyber Babe,

Chances are things won't go the way you expect. You'll either figure he's your one true love or a demon in disguise. That's the risk that you take. If you really like him and he likes you, then you have no reason to be nervous. Since you've only talked to him through e-mail and on the telephone, you know that he's really interested in the things that women really want men to be interested in--your inner beauty. Plus, quite a few relationships have started from Internet chat. Yet, if you are you having any doubts, by all means, don't do it. Don't do what you don't want to do and don't let "him" pressure you. If he's as much of a great guy as you say he is, then he'll understand if you don't want to meet him right now. It's up to you, so do what you think is best for you. Have fun and be careful.

AASU Peach Belt Basketball Tournament Seeks Volunteers!

The AASU Peach Belt Tournament Steering committee met on Thursday, January 16 at 1:30 in the Sports Center. Joe Buck chaired the meeting. Handouts were distributed that enumerated many of the tasks still to be accomplished before the tournament.

Hospitality-Mike Lariscy reported for the Hospitality Room Committee and announced that they are soliciting funds from major donors-i.e. Nike, Adidas, Coke and a grocery chain. They have already been successful with two sponsors and are still working on others.

Facilities-Joe Buck asked that Mike Lariscy, Bill Kelso, and Dennis Rauch meet together to determine needs during the tournament and find ways to make the temporary tournament needs not conflict with student class needs and activities that regularly go on in the building.

Concessions-Sara Connor reported that she will be recruiting the "best" workers for the concession area because they would be having the most "fun." Let Sara know if you qualify for her team. Sara Connor and Ellen Struck will get a brief orientation to the Concession Area in the next few days.

T-Shirts-Eddie Aenchbacher announced that he is still looking for a few sponsors for the T shirts. If you have suggestions, let him know.

Tickets-Dan Harrell and Brad Burnett reported that they have worked out procedures for the handling of money during ticket sales. They distributed a handout showing the procedures for these volunteers.

Art Exhibit-It was announced that Jan Jones and Katie Humphrey will work with John Schmidt to coordinate the student art exhibit during the tournament.

Competition-Al Harris will act as liaison to the PBAC VPs for Student Affairs who are coordinating the dance team, pep band, mascot and cheerleader competition.

Volunteers-Ellen Struck reported that we need to start recruiting volunteers immediately. The decision was made not to use high school students but we will definitely want to use AASU students who can volunteer time.

If you wish to volunteer yourself or a student, call Ellen Struck in Human Resources.

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It's a great week for visiting with friends. Though you're in top form in presenting your ideas, some you deal with may be evasive or guarded in their opinions.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You'll want time for some private concerns. In fact, time by yourself leads to insightful thinking. It's a good time to shop, but you may be a tad critical over the weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) There's a decided accent on leisure interests. You may take up a new hobby; others will meet with a new romance. Guard against careless spending over the weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The early part of the week will bring welcome career developments, but later, you may run into a few snags. Details need special tending. Accent family life this weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Though it's a great week for couples to go out somewhere together, you could spoil things. You're too fixed in your way of thinking and perhaps overly critical of others.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good time to meet with bankers and deal with residential concerns. Work interests should also go well. Try to avoid frivolous spending over the weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good week to meet with a child's teachers. Partners work well as a team, but at work, you may get bogged down with details. Don't dally over inconsequential.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Things will progress nicely for you in business this week, but a partner or relative may feel you're not paying them enough attention. Try to save time this weekend for close ties.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You and a partner think alike this week. However, mixed trends affect your social picture this weekend. A minor difference may arise with a friend or you meet with envy.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Research about investment matters leads to good insights this week. Behind-the-scenes moves are favored in business, but guard against flippant speech this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new cultural interest may intrigue you this week. Treat higher-ups with the proper respect. Social life is fun, but be sure to meet a partner halfway this weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An early start this week puts you ahead of the competition. Be alert for new opportunities. You shouldn't discuss your financial affairs with a friend who talks too much.
